NOTED JERSEY SIRE IS BROUGHT HERE

FROM MERIDITH FARM

Also Six Head of Females—Dairymen Return With Kinnaird From Sale This Morning.

J. T. Wells and E. C. Moberly, two prominent Nodaway County dairy farmers, returned this morning from Des Moines, Ia., where they purchased seven head of pure bred Jersey cattle from the Meridith Jersey Farm near Des Moines, yesterday. They were accompanied to Des Moines by R. A. Kinnaird, county agent.

The men bought jointly a Jersey bull, three and one-half years old, that is a brother to the Jersey bull that heads the herd at the Iowa State College Agricultural farm at Ames, Ia., and that was sired by E. T. Meridith's celebrated Financial Beauty's King, which was grand champion of the middle west in 1922. The cattle sale was conducted by Mr. Meridith, who is publisher of the Successful Farmer and who was for a time during the Wilson administration secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The Jersey bull that these men will bring to Nodaway County is Financial Fontaine King. One of the daughters of Financial Fontaine King's sire holds the junior two-year-old Jersey record of the world for milk production, having produced 14,746 pounds of milk containing 835 pounds of butter in the period of 365 days.

Both Mr. Wells and Mr. Moberly

TAX CUT MEASURE IS NOW COMPLETE

CONFEREES REACH UNANIMOUS AGREEMENT

SENATE TO ACT FRIDAY

Is Expected to Effect Saving of $472,620,000 Annually—Coolidge Expected to Approve it

Washington, May 21 — Complete agreement on the 1924 tax reduction bill and the adjustment of all differences between the House and Senate was finally reached today.

The tax agreement represents a compromise between the so-called Longworth Republican plan and the Simmons Democratic rates, and as it stands, the Democrats can claim at least a 50 per cent authorship of the bill.

The Democrats were successful in writing into the financial measure the rates on incomes ranging from 2, 4 and 6 per cent on smaller incomes up to 40 per cent on huge incomes.

The provision providing for publicity of tax returns held obnoxious by both President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon, was stricken out of the bill entirely. Instead of this kind of publicity ,the bill will authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to permit publicity of the names of taxpayers in their local districts together with the amount of tax paid, but there will be no divluging of the secrets of the returns themselves.

The coalition scored another victory when the House provision for an indirect tax upon tax exempt securities was striken out of the bill. This provision had been defeated in the Senate after being hotly condemned by the "insurgent" group.

Senator Simmons, Democrat of North Carolina, minority finance leader, claimed a legislative victory when the conference agreement was announced.

A tax of 10 per cent on Mah Jongg sets was written into the bill. It will bring in an estimated revenue of $1,500,000.

The confcrees, however, exempted all jewelry costing less than $30 from taxation as well as spectacles and eye glasses. Similar exemptions were granted on surgical and musical instruments and on silver-plated tableware.

The conferees defeated a proposal added by the Senate which would have reduced parcel post zone rates on newspapers. The Senate voted to restore the newspaper rates of 1919, but the House conferees flatly refused to agree. As a result, the provision was striken from the bill.

The conference report was agreed to unanimously by all of the conferees and will be called up first in the Senate on Friday.

Senator Smoot, Republican of Utah, chairman of the Senate finance committee, said after the agreement that he expected President Coolidge to sign the bill. It will become effective thirty days after the date of signature.

The conferees estimated that the new law will effect a total reduction of $472,620,000 annually.

Herriot said the conference had avoided reparations and other international issues.

REPUBLICANS ARE RESTING EASY NOW

CLAIM TAX REDUCTION AND BONUS ARE POSSIBLE

COOLIDGE MAY SIGN BILL

But Senators Threaten to Pass Tax Reduction Measure Over His Veto —Tentative Agreement Obtained

Washington, May 21—Republican leaders in Congress who have been kept in anxiety for the last several weeks over President Coolidge's threatening gestures with the veto pen, have succeeded in convincing the President that it will be possible to go before the country in the approaching election with both the bonus and lower taxes to the party's credit.

They have succeeded, it became known today, in extracting from the White House a tentative understanding that if certain objectionable features are eliminated from the tax bil, Mr. Coolidge will approve it even though the bill is not to his liking.

Heartened by this magic dispersion of party discord, the Republican conferees went back to work today prepared to eliminate from the pending bill those features which are particularly objectionable to the White House and Secretary Mellon—the provision for publicity of returns, the graduated corporation tax, and the heavy inheritance tax which Mellon considers as confiscatory.

The President has been informed by his Congressional advisors that unless he accepts the tax bill as it comes from the conference, there is an excellent chance of it being enacted over his veto, as was the bonus.

HARVE ENGLAND

ANOTHER GLACIAL AGE?

Persons who still believe the seasons are changing can take heart, despite frequent scientific refutations, at the words of Rutget Sernander, Swedish scientist, who foresees another ice age coming.

This view is sustained by many scientists in this country as, indeed, all over the world. The layman is accustomed to speaking of the ice ages as something particularly ancient, yet, they are, geologically speaking, relatively modern. It is not unlikely that remains of the great ice sheet which covered most of North America were in evidence 25,000 years ago, and this is recent when it is considered that the age of the earth is placed at least 100,000,000 years.

But there really is nothing to worry about. If ice sheets are forming their work will not begin in earnest for hundreds of centuries to come. Perhaps they are gaining at a mere foot a year. Our great, great, great grandchildren will have been forgotten long years before the barriers form, if, indeed, they form at all. It is interesting speculation, but nothing to worry about. Science, by that time, may perfect some chemical substance to melt the ice and evaporate the waters as quick as the ice sheets form.

A BRAVE GIRL.

Those timid souls, comprising the faculty and student body of Garrett Biblical Institute of Northwestern University, who would abolish war by the ostrich method of burying their heads and gaining a sense of security through their failure to see what is going on about them should be proud of the lone girl student who had the courage to denounce their foolishness.

Some time ago some well-intentioned but unintelligent leader of things at Garrett Institute conceived the idea of having the faculty and student body take an anti-war pledge. Faculty and students were asked to vote yes or no on a proposition declaring that they would not go to war under any circumstanees. One hundred and twenty-four maudlin sentimentalists voted for this pledge; one, Inez Traxler, daughter of an Illinois attorney, cast a negative ballot. Defending her vote before the impractical saints who must have cast reproving glances at this forward girl, she said:

"If the Japanese were to land on our western coast tomorrow, I suppose you would all stay in your bedrooms and pray. If any enemy were in the streets of your city; if they dragged our families from their homes and attacked them, I suppose you would fall on your knees on the pavement."

There is no argument to the sort of answer Miss Traxler advanees. It is the word of a sensible young girl with an appreciation of things as they are offered against the sentimental outcroppings of smug pacifists who overlook things as they really are an envision the world as it should be—or, rather, as they think it should be.

FOR A MERCHANT MARINE.

The American Merchant Marine, the backbone of naval defense, has found a strong champion in Secretary of the Navy Wilbur who has just stressed the need for development along this line.

Secretary Wilbur's logic is hard to escape. "It is not just to a child to leave money lying about carelessly, nor to a world to build up a great and entirely undefended pile of gold." Temptation is strong and history has proved the tendency of mercenary nations to seek war with others that possessed great riches inadequately protected.

GERMAN BANKRUPTCY.

German business men point to the high rate of commericial failures in Germany as a proof of the chaoie state of that nation's business structure. In one day, it is reported, twenty-five Berlin firms went to the wall. One of them, a concern employing 32,000 men was aided by the government in order that this great number of workers might not be thrown out of employment.

It is generally regretted on this side of the Atlantic as in Europe that this condition of affairs obtains in Germany. But there is little than any nation save Germany can do about it. The conditions which now plague central Europe and result in Berlin alone witnessing twenty-five business failures in one day are the result of the acts of the German government and not the fault of other nations.

Germany brought on the world war. Germany carried on that war in a ruthless manner which sacrificed millions of dollars of property that might have been spared. Since the war German has consistently followed a policy of debasing her currency in the hope of reducing her internal debts and the debts of her private citizens at the expense of her creditors. By subterfuge and evasion, by disregard of all accepted standards of honesty Germany has brought herself into the plight she is now in.

BAILING OUT CRIMINALS.

New York plans to carry on a sweeping investigation of the practice of admitting prisoners to bail who have had previous criminal records. Recently it was discovered that one of the most notorious bucket shop brokers, who should have been in the penitentiary serving a long term, was paroled after three months, and charges of general laxity have followed.

Neither the bail system nor the parole system should be condemned. Both were created in a spirit of justice. But they can easily be abused. Prisoners who have criminal records should not be permitted to secure their freedom pending trial, nor should persons convicted of serious charges be paroled without good reason. And professional bondsmen should not be recognized.

Ford Sales Show Big Gain Over March

Retail Sales of Cars and Trucks Amount to 211,410—12,000 Tractors are Sold

Detroit, Mich., May 21—Retail sales of Ford cars and trucks in the United States rose to 211,410 during April, a substantial increase over the record-breaking deliveries of March, the Ford Motor Company announced here today.

At the same time, it was stated that sales of Fordson tractors, which have been steadily increasing since the first of the year, exceeded 12,000 in April.

Further, in the high-priced car field, sales of Lincoln cars, which are produced by a division of the Ford Motor Company, reached a new monthly record with a total of 762 retail deliveries. During the first four months of the present year, Lincoln sales showed an increase of approximately 55 per cent over the same period a year ago the company says.

While the sales figures of the company graphically illustrate the constantly growing popularity of all Ford products, they likewise present an optomistic business outlook.

A review of the sales records shows that for two years retail deliveries of Ford cars and trucks in the United States have exceeded 100,000 a month, the company says, while for nine of the months during the past year sales were well over the 150,000 mark, and the big demand during March and April this year carried sales for each of those months considerably over 200,000.

Despite late spring weather in many sections, the demand for Fordson tractors for agricultural use continues to grow, while a noticeable increase in the percentage of Fordsons going into industrial use is accepted as reflecting generally prosperous conditions.

Analysis of the sales reports received from its various branches, the company says, indicates an increased volume of business for May.

Springer-Kegin Wedding.

The following account of the wedding of Clyde L. Kegin, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Kegin of Maryville, and Miss Mary L. Springer of Glenwood, Ia., which took place on May 10, is clipped from a Glenwood paper:

A pretty home wedding was solemnized in Glenwood Saturday at 7 o'clock p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Springer on South Vine street, where their only daughter, Miss Mary L. Springer, was united in marriage with Clyde L. Kegin. Rev. F. C. Gonzales, pastor of the Congregational Church, spoke the words uniting the lives of these young people, as they stood beneath a beautiful bower of lilacs. The entire room was a profusion of lilac blossoms, fitting emblems of the youth of May. The bride was charming in her tailored traveling suit of gray and powder blue with a corsage bouquet of powder blue sweet peas. The groom was attired in the conventional business suit.

Immediately following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Kegin left on No. 12 for a brief wedding trip. They will visit Mrs. Kegin's old home at Davenport before returning. They expect to establish a home in Glenwood. Both of these young people have resided here less than a year, but during that time they have made friends whose good wishes for success and happiness is theirs. The bride is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Springer, who are but temporarily located here, Mr. Springer being superintendent of the construction company erecting the new institution buildings. They have an apartment in the J. F. Rether home. Mrs. Kegin is a graduate of the Davenport high school and afterwards attended the Art Institute at Denver, Colo., and has since been at home with her parents. She is an accomplished young lady of most pleasing personality well fitted to preside over her new home.

Mr. Kegin came from Maryville, Mo., and holds the trusted position of cashier at the Glenwood depot. He appears in every way worthy of the charming bride he has won.

Reception for Mungers

Last Sunday's edition of the Lincoln, Neb., State Journal contained an attractive picture of Mrs. I. C. Munger, formerly Miss Anne Leonard, and the following account of her recent marriage to Dr. Munger:

Dr. and Mrs. I. C. Munger gave an informal reception Saturday evening at their home, 2923 South street, for Mr. and Mrs. Irvia Munger, who were recently married at Logan, Ia. Mrs. Munger has a brief vacation from her work as vocal instructor at the State Teachers College, Maryville, Mo., and came Saturday to spend a few days at Lincoln. Mrs. Munger was Miss Anne Leonard of Indiana, and the marriage grew out of a season of Chautauqua work five years ago, the two young people being in the same company. This was shortly after Mr. Munger's return from France, where he saw service at base hospital Number thirty-seven. Since then Mrs. Munger has graduated and taken her master's degree at Chicago Musical college where she was a scholarship pupil of Richard Hageman of New York, did church and concert singing, was soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and concertized in the south and west. She is a member of Mu Phi Epsilon musical sorority. Mr. Munger is a graduate of the University of Wyoming, will receive his B. S. degree in June from the University of Nebraska, and expects to receive an M. D. in 1925. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Phi Rho Sigma honorary fraternity. He will go to New York for his interneship and Mrs. Munger will continue her musical studies there. She is a dramatic soprano.

The True Story of Woodrow Wilson

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

CHAPTER XXVI.

Why Wilson Broke Wih Joseps P. Tumulty, His Private Secretary.

The influence of Mrs. Edith Wilson on the life of the President, beginning as it did early in 1915 and extending to the hour of his death is one of those intimate chapters which will never be adequately described by the historian. Hers was a charm which affected Woodrow Wilson at every turn of his later career. Without seeking to dominate, yet guiding him just as surely as any advisor had in the past, sympathizing, helping with the details of his work, receiving his confidences, discussing problems of state, testing friends for their loyalty and unselfishness, in short, playing the confidante in a way that completely absorbed Mr. Wilson, there stood at his side through the critical years of his life a woman who it may truly be said shaped the destinies of the United States for nearly six years.

Like every woman she had her likes and dislikes. Some of those who in preceding years were frequent callers did not come as often to the White House when she became its mistress. Those who sought to reach the President on the other hand, knew that to reach Mrs. Wilson was frequently of incalculable aid. She moved about without ostentation, holding her place as first lady in the land with all the grace that befitted such a position.

The election of 1916 played an important part in the development of Mr. Wilson's new life. He felt more confident than ever of the support of public opinion. He did not seek new companions. He lived in the comfortable seclusion and quiet of the White House with his beloved wife. He did not make a transcontinental campaign in the summer of 1916 such as that of his opponent Charles Evans Hughes, the Republican nominee. He spent his summer at Shadow Lawn, Long Branch, New Jersey, making speeches every Saturday to visiting delegations. Altogether it was a season or recreation for the President and Mrs. Wilson not to the exclusion of public business, of course, but a happy blend of work and play.

Just after the memorable 1916 election, when the doubts and anxieties about a second term had been removed for all time, the beginning of a new era in the White House was apparent. Changes began to be made in the personnel. The author discloses one episode which has never before been related but which illustrates how completely Mr. Wilson had separated himself from his previous life. One day the President in casual conversation with Private Secretary Tumulty told the latter that he believed he ought to resign the secretaryship and go in for a political career in New Jersey as a member of Congress. For weeks preceding this conversation there had been reports published that Mr. Wilson had offered Mr. Tumulty a post on the Board of Appraisers in New York. Secretary Tumulty was at a loss to understand the origin of these rumors as to the place he was to occupy in the second administration. He could not recall offending the President in the slightest but at last Mr. Wilson revealed that the published reports were true—he did suggest resignation to his private secretary.

The author learned of the incident—and feeling sure that there must be some misunderstanding, sent a note to the President requesting an audience that afternoon and was received in the Green Room almost immediately.

Woodrow Wilson never liked to hear criticism yet he was one of the fairest of men. Knowing him for years as a man who would not render a judgment unfairly if he knew the facts, the author sought Mr. Wilson's reasons and found that prejudice had been carried to him with respect to his private secretary which was unfortunate—a prejudice based on a political cabal and upon impressions which were wholly unjust to his private secretary. For three-quarters of an hour we talked—it was a dramatic conversation only because the author felt that in such a case vehemence was essential in order to impress Mr. Wilson with the ingratitude that would be his if he listened to the enemies of his private secretary and gratified their wishes. Nobody would understand, the author told the President how one who had rendered as faithful service to him as had Secretary Tumulty could be asked to retire. None of the newspaper men who knew what had been accomplished by Secretary Tumulty for Woodrow Wilson would understand and the old taunt of New Jersey days—ingratitude—would arise once more. Mr. Wilson seemed to realize that he had wounded his faithful friend—the man who had fought his battles day and night—and he sent word through the author to his private secretary not to be disturbed.

As the critical days of 1917 approached Mr. Wilson came more and more to appreciate how valuable was the aid of his private secretary and while Tumulty was undoubtedly impulsive at times and made mistakes there is no question that he was loyalty itself in his service to Woodrow Wilson. Four years later the break did come and undoubtedly the influences which brought it about were not far different from those which were operating in 1916.

The incident which separated Woodrow Wilson and his private secretary occurred after the breakdown of the President and after his retirement from the White House. The letters in the record exchanged between Woodrow Wilson and Joseph P. Tumulty do not explain the break. They show clearly that Mr. Wilson never gave his former private secretary the audience he sought for it would have readily explained the misunderstanding.

Mr. Tumulty had, however, written a book which displeased some of the inner circle and he had conveyed a message to a banquet of Democrats in New York which Mr. Wilson claimed never to have written but which was given orally to his former private secretary just as were so many verbal messages in the years of their association. It was a harmless communication, simply an expression of the hope that the Democrats would do their part in leading the world to a better understanding between nations. There could be no possible objection to the message even if Mr. Tumulty had phrased it himself which he did not. Mr. Wilson objected to the message because it was construed by the newspapers as a participation by him in the selection of a candidate for 1924, but the message was merely a pretext—the anti-Tumulty influence won out and the man who stood by his chief for so many years was never even granted a hearing—indeed there is nothing to show that the subsequent messages from him ever reached Woodrow Wilson. In the last months of Woodrow Wilson's life efforts were made to reunite the two. Again influences hostile to Mr. Tumulty prevented such a meeting. What Mr. Wilson did do, however, just a few months before he died was to write a letter to a friend stating his opinion that the best man to make the race in New Jersey on the Democratic ticket for the United States Senatorship in 1924 would be Joseph Patrick Tumulty. This letter was to have been published in the Saturday Evening Post and already was in type when Mrs. Wilson asserted her legal rights to suppress the document. The missive shows that Mr. Wilson did not lose his regard for the man who served him eleven years as private secretary and who deserves to be called by those words which Woodrow Wilson used with peculiar precision, namely, a loyal friend.

(Tomorrow's chapter tells why Wilson asked America to enter the war and his early moves for peace.).

How a Veteran May Compute the Amount of His Coming Bonus

Veterans may compute the amount of adjusted compensation due them by observing the following rules:

1. Establish the number of days served at home, 500 being the limit.

2. Establish the number of days overseas, 500 being the limit.

3. Subtract 60 days from the total days served.

4. Then allow $1 a day for home service and $1.25 a day for foreign service.

5. Multiply the total by the age factor corresponding to the age of the veteran.

Example: John S. Smith, age 25, served 160 days at home and 100 days abroad. Knocking off the days of his home service leaves 100 days at $1 a day or $100, and 100 days at $1.25 or $125. Total credit due, $225. Multiply this by John Smith's age factor, which is 2.537 for the age of 25, and the result is $570.72, the face value of the insurance certificate. It bears interest at 4 per cent compounded annually.

To Funeral at Red Oak

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Gray motored to Red Oak, Ia., Saturday and attended the funeral of Mrs. William Cochrane which was held Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Cochrane was Mrs. Gray's sister-in-law.

Mrs. Howard Beidle and daughter Martha of Ravenwood are Maryville visitors today.

Mr. and Mrs. James Carpenter and children, Beverly and Thelma Jean, went to Savannah today to visit Mrs. Carpenter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George McKnight.

Should Officials be Re-elected

Samuel Adams, Director General, Uncle Sam's Voters, Washington, D. C.

Periodically the question arises as to whether it is best to pursue a plan of rotation in office, whereby one-term limits will be placed upon holders of political posts, or whether it is best to continue men in office indefinitely, renominating the incumbent as long as he is willing to be a candidate.

Representative Walter F. Lineberger, of California, has recently entered the lists in advocacy of a single term of six years for the Presidency. Of course a Constitutional amendment would be necessary to put the plan into effect.

To be sure, it may be objected that neither the plan of single terms or of customary renomination will work well in all instances and that a great deal must depend upon conditions and upon the personality of the candidate himself. However, there are certain arguments that can be advanced for limited terms of office in general, and others that are more or less universally applicable toward the view that retention of competent men should be a policy.

Probably the tendency at present is toward the single-term plan. Senator Underwood, Alabam's "favorite son" in the Democratic convention, recently expressed the opinion that the President should serve for a term of six years and should be ineligible for re-election—the same plan as that proposed a little later by Mr. Lineberger, though they may have rather different ideas as to working out the scheme. It is interesting to note that no question of partisanship is involved, since Mr. Underwood is a Democrat and Mr. Linegerger a Republican.

The Senate, on March 17, rejected, 70 to 4, a proposal by Senator Willis, Republican, of Ohio, to have the Presidency limited to a single term of four years, and 45 to 10 a single six-year term proposal by Senator Harris, Democrat, of Georgia.

YES

1. Men should be chosen on the ground of their qualifications, without regard to their previous service or lack of service. That is a general principle of representative government There should, then, be no discrimination against the incumbent of an office.

2. Long service in positions of public trust is an excellent example to the citizenship. A man who has served satisfactorily for many years comes to hold a unique position in the minds and hearts of his fellow-citizens; they look upon him as a worthy and useful member of society, an inspiration to others.

3. Efficient service deserves a reward. The man who gives his best effort for the public good ought to have some public recognition for it. He certainly ought not to be treated as the people would treat a man whose term of office has been a scandal.

4. Public office should be efficiently managed. It is true that in small towns and small jobs there may be no duties so complicated that the average citizen cannot pick them up promptly, but in the more responsible executive positions that is not possible; skill and experience are valuable in direct proportion to the difficulty of the job. It will not be a remedy in every instance to appoint permanent nonpolitical officeholders, for some jobs are intimately bound up with politics and questions of policy, and these should be held up by the same official while his party is in power if the best work of the office is to be accomplished.

5. Governmental experience is against the plan of ousting a man after he has served one term. The Federal Constitution and the State Constitutions generally provide eligibility for renomination and reelection. There is nothing to prevent the reelection of a President for a third term, except a policy founded by Washington, restricting service to two terms; but the work of the Presidency is now so great that this limitation is probably one that will be adhered to as a matter of self-preservation if for no other reason. It is a question whether many men could survive twelve years or so exacting a job.

6. Single terms would tend to make officeholders arbitrary and irresponsible. A man who hopes for reelection will conduct his policies in such a way as to keep at least within reasonable bounds; but there would be no check except the highly indefinite likelihood of impeachment in the case of a man who, once in office for a single term, chose to abuse his power.

7. Limiting offices to a single term would either make a career in public service impossible, or would merely fail to remedy the faults of the present situation. A man would either be refused an opportunity to compete for a higher office when he was near the end of his term, or he would devote his energies to the campaign for that office instead of to renomination for the one he might be holding. No advantage, then, would result.

NO

1. Long service leads to political lethargy. Not only does the incumbent take his political duties merely as a matter of routine when he has been elected over and over again, but the continuation in office of a representative of the people over long periods of time raises doubt as to whether the voters themselves are taking enough interest in government to make popular government a reality.

2. Most political jobs do not require special qualifications, and those that do can usually be assigned to a nonpolitical civil service regime, if it is desired to do so. The average citizen can handle the work of the average political job.

3. "Rotation in office" is an American principle. It tends to keep government functions from dry rot by bringing in new ideas and personalities, and by distributing public service as widely as possible among the people.

4. Public officials are not likely to be of extraordinary ability; in fact, under present conditions, with the lack of interest in politics that is indicated by the voting returns, it would appear that they may not even be up to the average. There is no more difficulty involved, so far as the office is concerned, in a succession of mediocre men than in entrusting it for a long time to one mediocre man.

5. Officeholders get a fever for perpetuating their jobs. They make understandings among themselves that they will support each other, and when this condition has arisen it is time to end it by throwing out the whole parcel of jobholders.

6. Politics will be emphasized too much if a man is eligible to serve more than one term. He will devote most of his time and effort toward making sure of reelection, and give what remains of his energies to the public welfare. It is this condition of affairs, more than anything else, that has been responsible for the frequent demands for single-term limitations on the holding of public office in the United States. The public is well aware of the danger.

7. A man can build up a strong machinery while in public office to insure his reelection. He would have less interest in doing it for someone else, unless it was his intention to evade a single-term law by getting a dummy into office until he was eligible to hold it again. But such a variety of nepotism would be difficult to engineer or to carry out, for proteges of this type have a way of breaking loose once they are in office.

8. It is better to get out an unsatisfactory official at any cost than to keep in satisfactory men who can be replaced without much trouble. Sometimes a man can build up a machinery in office so strong that it is next to impossible to get him out, and he will continue on year after year in spite of general dis-approbation. To guard against such an eventuality the single term is well worth while.

Lawrence Kempf, living seven miles southwest of Maryville, was being tried in justice of peace court this afternoon before Judge Warren L. Johnson for petit larceny. The chief witness for the state is Fletcher Wagner, who alleges that Kempf stole a windshield and a spring off of an old Ford automobile last spring. Wagner lives in the neighborhood of Arkoe. W. A. Blagg is attorney for the defense.

Judge Johnson's office was crowded and at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon witnesses were being examined.

Monthly Milk Tests are Finished Today

R. A. Kinnaird, county agent, completed the regular monthly testing of milk samples of the cows of dairy farmers in this vicinity that are keeping their herds on record and taking advantage of the milk testing services that Mr. Kinnaird has offered since December, because of the fact that there is no milk testing association in this county.

Tests were made of cows owned by the following farmers:

J. T. Wells, 35; E. C. Moberly, 16; Eugene Ogden, 13; George Wright, 8; D. O. Belt, 7; Hartness Bros., 4; making a total of eighty-three.

THE GREAT STONE FACE

You remember the story of the Great Stone Face?

And Ernest, the boy who, looking on the rocky formations from early youth, sensed the nobility in the stone features, yearned to be like it in spirit.

And you remember how he grew up into manhood as the soul image of the face of stone?

Well, the story merely teaches that PEOPLE WILL ABSORB WHAT THEY LOOK AT.

If you have a business, large or small, you must be seen in print to draw the world to your door.

Men who advertise are the Great stone Faces of business, casting abroad their influence, absorbed by the community.

Democrat-Forum Want Ads, small though they are, in effect are Great Stone Faces, observed of all observers.

HOGS AND SHEEP HIGHER —BEST CATTLE STEADY.

Kansas City Stock Yards, May 19.—The best class of fed cattle and stockers and feeders were fully steady, but the others were 10 to 15 cents lower. Chicago had another heavy Monday run and quoted sharp declines, and this tended to weaken the market here. Hogs were quoted 5 to 10 cents higher than last week's high close, and the advance carried the market to the high point of the year. This is the first Monday in several weeks that the market ruled higher. Sheep and lambs were quoted 15 to 25 cents higher.

Today's Receipts.

Receipts today were 16,000 cattle, 12,000 hogs, and 6,000 sheep, compared with 13,000 cattle, 13,000 hogs, and 14,000 sheep a week ago, and 12,450 cattle, 19,200 hogs and 7,325 sheep a year ago.

Beef Cattle.

There was a fairly active trade in choice fat steers at fully steady prices. The other classes were off 10 to 15 cents, and the slowest trade was in the plain to fairly good classes. The general market was much the same in cows and heifers as in steers. Prime steers, cows, heifers and yearlings were lacking. Good to choice steers sold at $9.75 to $11, and fair to good steers at $8.75 up. Grass fat Texas steers sold at $6.25 to $8. Good cows sold at $6.25 to $7.25, and good heifers at $7.50 to $8. Veal calves were 50 cents under last week's high point. Offerings of cows will be light from now on, but fairly liberal receipts of yearling steers, and steers and heifers mixed are expected.

Stockers and Feeders.

Receipts of stockers and feeders were larger than on preceding Mondays. Good to choice classes were steady and the others 10 to 15 cents lower, with some of the ordinary classes off as much as 25 cents.

Hogs.

Hog prices today touched the high point of the season, top $7.50, and bulk of sales $7.25 to $7.45. The general market has been on the up grade since last Tuesday, and today was the first Monday in some time past that an advance was reported. In the past three weeks prices have fluctuated within a 35 to 40 cent range, and a further advance is expected this week. The selling side feels that a period of strong hog markets it at hand. Packing sows sold at $6.65 to $6.75, and pigs $5.25 to $6.00.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep and lambs were quoted 15 to 25 cents higher, mostly 25 cents up. No fed lambs in fleece arrived and probably no more will be available this season. Shorn fed lambs sold at $15 to $15.25, a new top for the year. Spring lambs brought $16.50 to $17.25. Texas wethers are quoted at $8.25 to $8.75 and grass fat ewes $7.35 to $7.85.

Horses and Mules.

FIERY, ITCHY SKIN QUICKLY SOOTHED BY THIS SULPHUR

Mentho-Sulphur, a pleasant cream, will soothe and heal skin that is irritated or broken out with eczema; that is covered with ugly rash or pimples, or is rough or dry. Nothing subdues fiery skin eruptions so quickly, says a noted skin specialist.

The moment this sulphur preparation is applied the itching stops and after two or three applications, the eczema is gone and the skin is delightfully clear and smooth. Sulphur is so precious as a skin remedy because it destroys the parasites that cause the burning, itching or disfigurement. Mentho-Sulphur always heals eczema right up.

Chicken mites are pests and Genuine Blood Suckers. Carbolineum applied once a year will do the work. Sold and guaranteed by Holt Supply Co.

If Back Hurts Begin on Salts

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally by Drinking Quarts of Good Water

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Too much rich food creates acids which clog the kidney pores so that they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood. Then you get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage, or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin to drink soft water in quantities; also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to help flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and can not injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, which everyone can take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby often preventing serious kidney complications. By all means have your physician examine your kidneys at least twice a year.

Join Hands to Make Bonus Arrangements

Washington, May 21—Official Washington joined hands today in a move to adjust the government to the soldier bonus bill.

Congress, which forced the bill into law over the president's veto, showed a willingness to co-operate in adjusting so far as possible the pending tax reduction bill to conform to the added cost of the bonus.

The various executive departments charged with administration of the bonus law hurriedly began to assemble their forces. The administrative question was taken up at the cabinet meeting and it was determined that upward of 3,000 additional employes would be required immediately for the work of circulating application banlks and assembling data.

Getting Ready to Distribute Blanks

The American Red Cross joined the government departments today in the work of distributing to veterans application blanks and full instructions on the provisions of the bonus bill and it is planned to have this well under way within a few days.

The greatest burden of administrative work will come during the next year. Although none of the insurance certificates will be issued before next January 1, and the cash payments will not be made until after next March 1, the task of examining 4,000,000 applications expected, will be gotten under way as quickly as possible.

The war department today submitted an estimate of $4,500,000 to the budget bureau as the amount necessary to meet administrative expense during the next fiscal year. This contemplates the employment of more than 2,500 additional clerks and the certification of records of about 4,000,000 World War veterans.

Effect Later, Says Coolidge.

Similar work must be undertaken by the navy department although on a smaller scale. The veterans bureau, in which is vested actual control of administration of the law, will require additional appropriations.

On the question of the probable result of the bonus bill on government finances, President Coolidge was represented today as believing the effect will be felt more in years to come than immediately. The law covers a period of twenty years, at the end of which the insurance certificates will be payable. It is estimated that the average annual cost over this period will amount to about $115,000,000.

A WORD ABOUT US.

An earnest wish to give you the kind of a painting job you want and have a right to expect is the cornerstone of our business.

9th Field Artillery To Be Here on June 4

Captain Ruffner Receives Communication From Major Shephard, Regarding Itinerary of Unit

Capt. David L. Ruffner, instructor of field artillery for Battery C of the 128th Field Artillery of the Missouri National Guard, announced today that he has received a communication from Major W. A. Shephard of the First Battalion of the Ninth Field Artillery, regular army, Fort Des Moines, Ia., in regard to the itinerary of this unit its route from Fort Riley, Kan., to its headquarters.

Captain Ruffner said that the Ninth Field Artillery would in all probably be in Maryville on June 4, and camp here during the night, then going to Hopkins the next day.

This regular army unit made a trip overland from Fort Des Moines to Fort Riley and was there about two weeks for the purpose of summer training. It will return overland to Fort Des Moines over a different route, taking in Maryville, as the unit received permission to return this route and has been invited to camp in Maryville.

Captain Ruffner said this morning that as soon as he receives definite word from the commanding officer of the Ninth Field Artillery, arrangements would be made for selecting a camping site in Maryville and for entertaining the officers and men while they are here.

Husband Heads Wholesale House

Mrs. C. J. Farley, Formerly Miss Clara Kalterman of Maryville, Moves to Omaha With Family

A recent issue of the Omaha Bee contained an article and picture of Mrs. C. J. Farley, who was formerly Miss Clara Kalterman of Maryville. Mrs. Farley's husband is the new president of the M. E. Smith & Co., wholesale dry goods house at Omaha.

For several years, she was one of the buyers of the Alderman-Yehle Dry Goods Company of this city, now the Yehle Dry Goods Co.

The article from the Omaha paper follows:

Mrs. C. J. Farley, wife of the new president of M. E. Smith & Co. arrived in Omaha today from Grand Rapids, Mich., with Betty Jean Farley, 4 1-2 months-old baby daughter.

Betty Jean and her nurse went to Hotel Fontenelle, but Mrs. Farley eager to see her husband and the big merchandising house whose destines he now controls, went immediately with him to the company's properties at Ninth and Farnam streets.

An hour later, after she and Mr. Farley had inspected several floors of the big establishment she paused a moment to exclaim, with genuine enthusiasm that she had never seen finer, better kept stock, nor a better arranged establishment.

"And Mrs. Farley knows merchandise," interjected Mr. Farley proudly. She knows more about it than I do."

"Well, hardly that," was Mrs. Farleys smiling retort.

However, Mrs. Farley really does know merchandise. She was a buyer for Marshall Field in Chicago and Bamberger in Newark, and for a big house in Grand Rapids, Mich. It was in Grand Rapids that she met Mr. Farley. They were married two years ago.

Mrs. Farley, who was formerly Miss Clara Kalterman, is a native of the middlewest, and for that reason says she is delighted at the prospect of making her home in Omaha. She was born and reared in Kansas City, and in years past came to Omaha quite frequently to visit her sister, Mrs. James A. Price.

The Farleys will live at Hotel Fontenelle until they obtain a home, which both agree, will be just as soon as possible.

bought three females each at the Meridith sale. Mr. Wells purchased three well bred heifers and Mr. Moberly bought two cows and one heifer. The cows both hold registered merit records.

One of the Jersey cows purchased by Mr. Moberly recently freshened and was started on a test. She has been giving forty pounds of milk per day and in the first thirty-day period of the test made sixty-six pounds of butter fat.

Mr. Moberly has a herd of about thirty-five Jersey cattle and Mr. Wells has close to 100 head of Jerseys in his herd.
